Highlights

- Simulated seeded ground truth favours its seed tracker by 0.049–0.160 IDF1
- The advantage comes mainly from identity errors that reviewers leave unfixed
- Seed-correlated errors reorder trackers more than random errors of the same size
- Consensus seeding reduces the distortion but does not protect trackers left out
- Union seeding helps little, and score brackets never contained the true score